Call for Participation—Focus on the Learner

The theme of the conference is an opportunity for participants to reflect on our current knowledge and practices as learners, as teachers of learners and as designers of environments for learning. We would like to invite you, to start (or continue) that process of reflection now to make the conference meaningful for you by pondering upon:

- How are students approaching learning differently?
- Where do their motivations come from?

- What have you learnt as a teacher during and after each class?
- What are students learning that is not being consciously taught?
- How do students feel during different stages of the class or learning process?

By reflecting on learners and their learning process, we open up to new ideas, theory, research and practices. Please join us at JALT2015 to continue this process of reflection and transformation of ourselves as learners and as teachers.
